

DEFINITION OF A REPRESENTATIVE SAMPLE

A representative sample accurately reflects the entire client population and allows the collected results to be generalized. This requires a sample large enough, with random selection. A sample size of 250 is generally sufficient. Check here to calculate the representative sample size. You will need to fill in the confidence level (recommended: 90%) and margin of error (recommended: 5%)